Who should attend?

- ◆ Arbitration practitioners
- ◆ Litigators
- ◆ Lawyers looking to transition into dispute resolution
- ◆ In-house legal counsel
- ◆ You

The seminar is intended for anyone wishing to learn or perfect their cross-examination skills. This includes highly experienced litigators looking to expand their practice to international arbitration; transactional attorneys looking to transition or expand their practice area; attorneys just beginning their career in international arbitration; or experienced arbitration practitioners looking for constructive feedback and new insight.

This course will be approved for 15.25 hours of MCLE credit by the State Bar of California, and as the result of the California Bar approval is entitled to New York CLE credit.

What past participants have to say:

This ICC Seminar is an excellent advocacy training course focused on arbitration. With the help of highly experienced international arbitration practitioners, participants develop and improve skills that can be effectively put to use both inside and outside of an arbitration setting. The content of the course strikes a perfect balance between teaching segments that focus on highlighting the essentials of good advocacy, role play exercises, and feedback sessions during which faculty offer candid guidance through individual assessment. This is a format I can warmly recommend to anyone interested in challenging and improving their courtroom performance and perhaps even looking at advocacy in new terms.

Anne-Karin Grill, Schönherr in Vienna

Thanks to the hands-on guidance by experienced cross-examiners and the various work-shops, the seminar was a great opportunity to understand and actually experience how cross-examination works in practice, from the perspective of both counsel and witness, and to improve your interrogation skills and tactics. This was a very valuable program indeed.

Dr. Nicholas Kessler, Orrick in Düsseldorf

Background and Objective

Increasingly, cross-examination is a tool that skilled arbitration counsel must master and be prepared to deploy when appropriate. This workshop assists participants in building experience, expertise, and confidence in their cross-examination skills, using the proven "learning-by-doing" techniques used in programs such as those of the (U.S.) National Institute for Trial Advocacy.

The workshop focuses on the particular role and use of cross-examination in the international arbitration process, as distinct from litigation in national courts, as well as the need to adapt to tribunals composed predominantly of civil-law or common-law arbitrators. Also emphasized is that cross-examination is not an end in itself, but must be integrated into the overall case strategy.

The program focuses on practice cross-examination sessions interspersed with lectures, demonstrations, and strategy sessions. Participants will form groups, roughly sorted by experience, to represent the claimant or the respondent in a mock case (distributed in advance). In the practice sessions, participants will perform cross-examinations of witnesses based on the case file, followed by brief commentary from the workshop leaders in the room. A unique aspect of this seminar is that participants will have an opportunity to cross-examine highly experienced tax and accounting advisors from PwC Austria, who will act as the "expert witnesses". Participants will receive video recordings of their examinations which will be reviewed and discussed in one-on-one sessions with workshop leaders.

By the end of the workshop, participants will have performed multiple cross-examinations of fact and expert witnesses, received constructive comments and suggestions, reviewed their own performances on video, and increased their skill and confidence in using a critical advocacy tool. In addition, there will be a number of social activities planned for the evenings.
